

The United States Army Reserve Command (USARC) was created in October 1990. This was to provide for more centralized management of the Army Reserve. From this point, the Army Reserve concept of a "Operational Reserve" would evolve over the next twenty years.

USARC Shoulder Sleeve Insignia

Approved 24 June 1991

Symbolism: The two eagles' heads are in reference to the unit's motto, "Twice the Citizen", and their Reserve mission.

The Eagle faces in both directions, denoting vigilance and a wide-ranging scope of ability and expertise.

Red, White, and Blue are the colors of the United States

Gold represents excellence
